General Information

Short summary

A Frisian family-owned producer offers a unique, eco-friendly whisky crafted through generations of tradition. They seek distributors for their premium organic whisky.

Full description

For generations, a Frisian family has perfected a unique and eco-friendly approach to whisky production. Located on a farm in Dunsum, Föhr Island, within the Wadden Sea National Park, they oversee every stage of production from grain cultivation to bottling.

This distinct method is unique in Germany and rare globally, setting new standards for sustainable distilling and enhancing product quality. Each batch of organic whisky is unique, produced in limited quantities, and crafted by hand, reflecting the farm's deep connection to nature.

Their whisky stands out due to the organic farming process, where natural herbs and flowers are incorporated. The local environment, including temperature changes and harvest variations, adds depth and complexity to the whisky.

With a 400-year heritage, the family is committed to preserving the farm's legacy and ensuring a sustainable future for generations to come.

Advantages and innovations

- Exclusive single estate whisky made from their own organically grown grain.
- 100% organic production.
- Traditional and artisanal crafting methods.
- 75% renewable energy utilization through solar panels and a wood chip heating system.
- Circular economy practices: using brewer's grains to feed animals, which in turn provide manure for the fields.
- Aiming for 100% self-sufficiency and climate neutrality with planned investments in a windmill.
- Exemplary environmental responsibility and protection.
