

PROJECT MANAGER (M/F/X) VIRTUAL REALITY

We made it our goal at realworld one to introduce Virtual and Augmented Reality technology to industry and the sciences. Our mission is the development of a software platform fully utilizing this technology, in collaboration with leading businesses, researchers and scientists. We believe that VR/AR offers the potential to redefine professional and personal life in the near future.

In Freiburg, Germany, we are looking for a motivated and driven project manager to assist us in further growing and developing our successful company. The areas of responsibility for this position are varied and diverse: From the management of product-based VR/AR projects in collaboration with our developers, to the maintenance of customer relations and the support of sales.

Your tasks:

- You conceptualize VR and AR projects together with our customers and ensure that these projects are correct on a technical and scientific level, as well as being presented in an interesting manner
- You oversee the development process and work closely together with our 3D artists, programmers and concept artists, as well as our head of production
- You offer new ideas to our development team to further improve our software platform so that it can be adjusted to wishes from customers in the areas of laboratory and processing technology, as well as the life sciences
- You closely work with the chief executives of the company and assure that our customers are consulted in the best possible fashion

Your requirement profile:

- Bachelor, Master or PhD with a focus on mechanical engineering, process engineering, chemical engineering, chemistry, pharmacy, physics or biology
- Positive mindset and commitment
- Creativity and ability to work under pressure
- Excellent level of written and spoken Japanese, English and German

realworld one offers:

Opportunity to receive equity in the company // attractive compensation // diverse tasks and responsibilities in a dynamic field of work // working space in the heart of Freiburg // high prospects of promotion // direct collaboration with world-renowned scientists and businesses // open company culture with flat hierarchies // pleasant working space with opportunity to redesign and customize // exciting challenges in an international team with quick decision-making channels

Are you interested? Apply today! recruiting@realworld-one.com

APPLY NOW